Prioritizing Strategies

Social and Emotional Well-Being

Strategies can be prioritized using a number of different criteria such as ones that address the most immediate need, are easiest to implement and/or have greatest long-term impact. Keeping these in mind, select three strategies in total from the list below that you would prioritize for implementation and write why you selected those strategies.

Celebrating Aging

- Promote an aging-positive public narrative.
- Support new and existing channels that generate peer-to-peer community building.
- Create opportunities for increased intergenerational connections.

Planning for Aging

- Make planning for aging an integrated part of Californian’s lives.
- Create resources for families and loved ones to have conversations on aging.

Caring

- Provide supports that alleviate the physical and emotional demands of caregiving.

Job/Volunteer Opportunities

- Aid older adults in transferring existing skills or learning new skills that can be used in their everyday lives.
- Remove barriers and increase incentives that allow people to participate in the workforce longer.
- Build pathways for older adults and people with disabilities to access job and volunteer opportunities.
