The Inland Empire LTSS Coalition is a consortium comprised of several diverse health care entities, organizations, and stakeholders working together to better serve older adults and people with disabilities in the community. The Coalition is committed to facilitating systems change across networks and develop improved integrated care and service delivery of long-term services and supports (LTSS).

Recently, with support from the Community Access Center and Riverside County Office on Aging, the Coalition helped the region receive an Aging and Disability Resource Center (ADRC) designation.
